ugee policy that will permit, for camps who have close family and political ues to the United States. Administration officials said yesterday that, pending approval of new long-term refugee legislation, the liberalized interim procedures probably mean that about additional Indochinese will be allowed to enter the United States in the next year.

According to officials and congressional sources, Mr. Carter, in effect, ended a months-long debate within his administration by approving a set of policy guidelines on Monday night before leaving on his overceast trip.

The principles approved by Mr.
Carter, aides said, still have to be put into official directives, but they include the following:

Priority will be given to seek-ing long-term legislation that would increase from 17,400 to about 40,000 the number of refugees admitted on a yearly world-wide basis. But provisions would be retained for permitting additional refugees in case of new emergencies. No legislation is expected before next year.

•Until there is new legislation, the current law's emergency parole authority would be used to admit, without limit, all Vietnamese boat refugees unable to find homes elsewhere. Currently there are about 5,600 such refugees stranded throughout Asia, mostly in Malaysia and about 1,500 more Vietnamese are fleeing monthly in small boats. The United States expects to have to take about two-thirds of the cur-real and future "boat people." The "parole authority" also would be used in the interim peried to admit without limit those Indochinese refugees who escaped by land into Thailand and who have special family or political ties to the United States. There are now nearly 100,000 such refugees, mostly from Laos, in those overcrowded camps, and about a "African heads of state used to plead with President [Richard] Nixon and fformer Secretary of State Henry | Kissinger to show real attention to the affairs of Africa, and our indifference was very obvious," he said.

"Kissinger kept saving. 'How can you have an African policy refused to see African ambassadors in Washington, except to occasionally receive the whole African diplomatic corps as a group, which the Africans saw as very demeaning.'

Relations with the government in Lagos began deteriorating in 1967, when Washington refused to license the sale of arms to Nigeria, which was fighting a civil war against Biafran secessionists. mation. A visit to Lagos in 1970 by Secrelittle to ease the strain.

At that time, however, Nigeria had not had a president for seven years. And when the Nigerian head of state, Gen. Yakubu Gowon, did arrive, the White House arranged and then postponed so many appointments with Mr. Nixon that Gen. Gowon eventually gave up

U.S. Agency Ejected

In 1975 the Nigerian government gave the U.S. Information Service two weeks to vacate its premises in Lagos. When the agency refused to budge, troops moved in and occupied the building. During a six-month period that year, Nigeria refused on three occasions to receive Mr. Kissinger.

Relations here all but ruptured when Washington supported a faction backed by South Africa in the Angola civil war. The U.S. Embassy and the ambassador's residence were attacked in January, 1976. The next month the assassination of head of state Murtala Mohammed was blamed on the C.I.A., leading to more violent demonstrations.

Although many black African governments have paid no more than lip service to ending white minority rule in South Africa, Nigeria has been consistent, fervent and active in its opposition to apartheid. One example: Last week, Barciays Bank announced that it was buying $30 million in South African defense bonds. Nigeria promptly pulled all government funds out of the Barclays bank here and gave one-third of yesterday urged the Supreme the 60 white expatriates working Court to deny a hearing to Patty at Barclays 30 days to leave the country.

Beyond the presence of 15,000 Nigerian students in the United States, the connections between Washington and Lagos today are both political and economic. In addition, the State Department Wednesday called the Soviet analysis and critique of U.S. policy a "serious, thoughtful commentary" that deserved senous study.

The proposal for Mr. Vance and Mr. Gromyko to meet, administraton sources said, was made before the recent Kremlin neview of U.S.-Soviet policy that produced the Prayda article.

Mr. Vance discussed the idea of a Gromyko meeting with Soviet Ambassador Anatoli Dobrynin before Mr. Dobrynin left Washington for Moscow on March 17, reportedly "loaded down" with position papers on U.S. policy. 160 Acre Homestead For Only $2950

• Rich Fertile Wooded Land • Temperate Climate . Sufficient Water . Access to Supplies and Markets . Abundant Game

Once there was a great American frontier in the West. Chean fertile land and not many people to work it, opened up wonderful opportunities for generations of Americans, and immigrants too. Many prospered, many grew wealthy profitting from the development of the land and the nation's expansion. THOSE DAYS ARE SADLY GONE EXCEPT — YES EXCEPT FOR ONE PLACE — THE VAST TEMPERATE ZONE OF VIRGIN LAND IN THE STATE OF SANTA CRUZ, BOLIVIA.

AREA TEEMS WITH ACTIVITY AND NEW WEALTH

The Bolivian trontier is bustling with activity vast new tarming The Bolivian frontier is bustling with activity: vast new tarming areas are being opened up for cotion, soya beans, and corn; pasture lands in the north are being developed as catite ranches; new oil and gas discoveries are being made; mineral exploration is going forward; and plans are underway for a steel mill complex using natural gas for energy with estimated reserves of 40 billion tons of iron and manganese.

A report by the Bolivian — Utah State/USAID Study Team in 1972 concluded... "THE EASTERN PLAINS OF BOLIVIA SHOULD BE CONSIDERED AS ONE OF THE WORLD'S OUTSTANDING POTENTIALS FOR AGRICULTURE DEVELOPMENT." This potential can be your "Ground Floor" opportunity.

All of these activities are centered around the City of Santa Cruz

This potential can be your "Ground Floor" opportunity.

All of these activities are centered around the City of Santa Cruz de la Sierra, the booming capital of the State of Santa Cruz and Bolivia's second largest city. Santa Cruz de la Sierra was founded over 400 years ago, but it was connected to the outside world by little more than an ox can trail until a paved road was completed in 1955. Then oil and natural gas were discovered, making Bolivia more than self sufficient in petroleum (gasoline is just 40 cents a gallon in Santa Cruz). The oil and gas discoveries were loliowed by the boom in cotton Today, Santa Cruz is a major producer of oil, natural gas, cotton, sugar, noe, com, wheat and cattle. There is a petroleum refinery, 15 cotton gins, 5 edible oil extraction plants, 4 sugar mills and a burgeoning industrial park. There are plans for a cement mill, a can-making factory, a paper mill and a major textile plant.

The State Government of Santa Cruz has an average income of $20 million from oil royalties and has used this money wisely to $20 million from oil royalties and has used this money wisely to encourage the industries and services needed for full rapid development. Santa Cruz de la Sierra has grown more than five fold from 42,476 in 1950 to 255,568 in 1976, and is expected to reach over 800,000 by the turn of the century.

This is still a frontier city, yet according to the New York Times of 4 December 1974. "Unlike any other Bolivian city, Santa Cruzhas a large and growing middle class..." Speaking of Santa Cruz, the Financial Times of London said: "The Crucenos are renowned for their independent mentality. The old world colon-naded streets echo to a cowboy philosophy of free enterprise and survival of the fittest. This is a place where people can get things done" is something you hear at every turn." (8 February 1977).

done is something you hear at every turn." (6 February 1977).

People who want to "get things done" have been coming to the State of Santa Cruz. First there was the Japanese immigration from Okinawa, and today 30 miles north of Santa Cruz de la Sierra is the prosperous agricultural colony centered around the new Bolivian town of Okinawa. Then in the 1960's the first large wave of English speaking Menonites arrived, mostly from Manitoba, Canada and later more from Paraguay and Mexico. This well known religious farmano group, penarally called Pennsylvania. known religious tarming group, generally called Pennsylvania Dutch in the United States, were seeking rich larming lands in a country where they could live in peace with a minimum of governmental interference in their community affairs. They came to Santa Cruz, Bolivial

Today there are about 11,000 Menonites in various farming communities. They are virtually sell sufficient, raising their own fruits and vegetables, dairy products, pourtry, beel and pork, plus large acreages devoted to cash crops, mostly soya beans, wheat

The Bolivian Government has indicated a willingness to accept European farmers from Rhodesia, Namibia and South Africa to settle in its unpopulated areas, and this new immigration is just beginning. While the foreign immigration has been going on, many industrious Bolivians from other areas have also settled in

According to the Wall Street Journal: Bolivia's econor shows strong elements of stability. (Feb. 8, 1977) "The inflation rate . . . is infinitesimal by Letin standards" (June 3, 1977) and "Consumer prices rose 4.6% from 1975 to 1976" (The Times, Dec. 13, 1977).

ENTERPRISING PEOPLE WANTED

Bolivia is looking for enterprising people to help develop its resources. There is a generous tax incentive program for agricultural enterprises and there are boundless new business opportunities in supplies and services to the burgeoning activity and population. Santa Cruz is well served by both State and foreign nks, including the First National Bank of Boston and the Bank of

The State of Santa Cruz is Bolivia's richest and biggest, with a population of around 700,000 and a third of the country's area. The population of Santa Cruz is growing at twice the rate of the rest of Bolivia, which has a total population of 4.7 million. Santa Cruz is growing at twice the rate of the rest of Bolivia, which has a total population of 4.7 million. Cruz is estimated to have 65 million acres of useable land, but only 2 million are being farmed. The fand is the real wealth of Santa Cruz, and this is where the opportunities are greatest

"As far as the eye can see, it's one vast area of potential farm land broken only by stands of virgin timber "Wall Street Journal, (3 June, 1976).

VIRGIN LANDS

The Anglo Bolivian Land and Cattle Company has conducted a

The Anglo Bolivian Land and Cattle Company has conducted a thorough search of the best undeveloped agricultural lands in Santa Cruz. We have screened hundreds of offers of undeveloped land and accepted only those with completely clear legal title, suitable soits, acceptable rainfall, and good access to the city of Santa Cruz de la Sierra.

This is heavily forested land, classified by ecologists as "temperate dry to moist forest." There is a sufficient rainfall of at least 40 inches most years, mainly from November through March Once cleared of forest and properly prepared, this land is ideal for cotton, soya beans, com, wheat, pineepples and peanuts. This is not jungle land or tropical rain forest, such as is being cleared in parts of the Amazon basin Ecologists and soit scientists have serious doubts about the advisability of clearing tropical rain forest for grazing and agriculture, but the temperate wooded lands of Santa Cruz are ideal for agricultural development.

LAND READY FOR WORKING The undeveloped land can be immediately cleared for agriculture, or just partially cleared, and in either case farmed individually or leased to a tenant. Alternatively the land can be lett in its natural state for recreational use and value growth A small site can be cleared for a house. Construction of a simple but adequate dwelling costs less than $5 per square loot. ACCESS TO SUPPLYS & MARKETS

All of the lands selected by Anglo Bolivian Land and Cattle Company are alongside or near major road projects or existing railroads and have adequate road access.

LAND VALUES INCREASING In the pest, prime undeveloped land in Santa Cruz has appreciated between 15 to 20 percent annually. There is, of course, no guarantee that this rate of increase in value will continue.

Developed land generally has a lar greater appreciation, and the major opportunity is in improving the undeveloped land. It must be remembered, though, that this is a frontier. The weather is generally quite mild, but it does sometimes get hot in the summer, and even down to the low fortes (Fatirenheit) during the winter. There are insects that bite. The roads can occasionally the state of the fire. be muddy during the rainy season and dusty during the dry Transportation is mostly by four wheel drive vehicles and trucks.

FERTILE SOIL -- ABUNDANT GAME

But this land has its own rewards. The soil is fertile, and the lorest is populated by a wide variety of game animals and birds, the collared and white lipped peccary, white tailed and brochet deer, tree turkeys, partridge, grouse and dove Most of the other species are protected under Bolivian law including the jaguar, puma, ocelor, margay, brown capuchins, grey lox, coati and par-rots. The bird life is prolific.

AN INVESTMENT FOR THE FUTURE

Buying undeveloped land in Santa Cruz affords you the oppotunity of being a modern day proneer helping to solve the Earth's growing lood problem while problems from your work talent and enterprise Furthermore, with good land management you can also preserve much of the native fauna and flora. For the less active, it provides the basis for an appreciating investment with the added possibility of recreational use for second home development, camping, hunting and nature study it's something to think about for your children's future — anything from 150 acres to a solid square mile of land for them to develop This is an outstanding opportunity for them to learn about proneering life in a developing country.

EASY TRAVEL ARRANGEMENTS

Travelling to Santa Cruz from the United States is very simple Just come to Miami and then board a Lloyds Aereo Boliviano's Boeing 727 direct to Santa Cruz de la Sierra, which has its own international airport (and plans to build a bigger one yet) in Santa Cruz you can stay at the modern Holiday Inn. WE INVITE YOU TO VISIT US IN SANTA CRUZ Once you are in Santa Cruz, you'll probably want to explore the rest of fascinating Bolivia: the thriving capital of La Paz, the untouched colonial city of Sucre, the famous mining center of Potosi once the largest city in the Western Hemisphera, the delightful flowering City of Cochabamba, the beautiful Lake Ticicaca, and virtually unexplored Inca archiological sites.

MODERN FRONTIER OPPORTUNITY

During the days of the American frontier, the pioneer was offered a quarter of a square mile — 150 acres — under the Homestead Act, for cleaning and planting the land, and building a suitable dwelling. Today, in the State of Santa Cruz, you can purchase and secure clear title to a 160 acre homestead for just 2005. purchase and secure clear title to a 160 acre homestead for just $2,950, with a low downpayment of $295 and the balance payable over two years with 6 percent interest on the unpaid balance. This works out to monthly payments of $117.67, with a total of $169.11 in interest over the two year period. Larger tracts, up to a solid square mile — 640 acres, are priced at $9.950 with $995 down and the balance in three years with 6 percent interest on the unpaid balance, making a monthly payment of $272.43, with a total of $852.48 in interest over the three year period. Naturally these tracts can be purchased for cash, or prepaid at any time without penalty.

Olin To Pay 'Reparations' in Arms Case

By Robert Tomasson

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 31 (NYT)—A U. S. judge ordered, the Olin Corp. yesterday to pay $510.000 for charity programs in A New Haven as "reparations" for the company's illegal arms sales e to South Africa.

The unusual move surprised lawyers for both the company and the government.

Ecology Groups Criticize White House staff to follow the matter closely. exempt states from cavionmer revisions for paying part of d By Margot Homblower

WASHINGTON, March 31 (WP)-A cualition including almost every major U.S. environmental group yesterday accused the Carter administration of breaking its word and "subvert-ing" proposed federal water policy changes.

President Carter last year promised to halt the building of expensive and sometimes environmentally destructive dams, to provide incentives to cut down water consumption, and to stop subsidizing large irrigation, navigation and other commercial interests. A water policy statement is now under review at the White House and is expected to reach Mr. Carter's desk in a few

But, according to the Coalition for Water Projects Review, the administration is now "dancing to a different tune: the old politics of pork barrel [patronage] and of sacrificing rivers, streams and wetlands to the demands of narrow groups and powerful beneficiaries.'

Major Break

The denunciation, at a press conference by representatives of the Coalition, and of the National Wildlife Federation, the National Audubon Society and the Environmental Policy Center, represents a significant break between the Carter administration and the environmental community that has so strongly supported

The coalition specifically attacked Vice-President Mondale and Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus, who coalition coordinator John Burdick said has "made one concession after another." Mr. Burdick cited recent approvals of Denver's Foothills project and North Dakota's Garrison irrigation project, both of which are strongly opposed by environmentalists.

Mr. Burdick said that Mr. Mondale has refused to meet with conservationists, but that he spoke almost exclusively to "the powerful resource extractorstimber interests, mining interests, cattlemen and water development interests," during a recent trip to the West, adding that Mr. Mondale "has been active behind the scenes to water down [proposed]

Strict South Korean Laws Muzzle Dissident Writers

SEOUL, March 31 (WP)- North Koreans to wage war Yang Sung U, a South Korean against the South poet in his early 30s, wrote a long poem, entitled "Diary of a Slave," which depicts his countrymen as impoverished and oppressed by the government.

It could not have been published in his country, so Mr. Yang here. Since political criticism is managed to get it printed in a lapanese magazine last year. He was arrested, tried and sentenced to three years in prison for violating President Park Chung Hee's proclamation prohibiting criticism of the government.

Mr. Paik was charged with violating a law that forbids the wring or publication of material prasing Communism. He is now on irial and faces a possible seven-ear sentence.

The authorities were more leni-ent with Park Yang Ho, who wrote an allegorical short story called "Crazy Bird." Modeled on George Orwell's "Animal Farm." it portrays South Koreans as Irightened chickens guarded by dogs who reward their submis-siveness with handouts of food. Charges against Mr. Park have been dropped and he has been released after serving a month in prison. international reputations and the obstacles they face are hardly known except by their friends strictly prohibited outside of the National Assembly by laws and proclamations dating from the early 1970s, many writers have turned to poetry and allegorical fiction as vehicles for their protests. Even those veiled criticisms have provoked arrests and trials.

South Korea's most famous poet, Kim Chi Ha, is serving a life term for having allegedly manipulated a student demonstration against the government in 1974. He was released in 1975, but then indicted again and imprisoned for two of his works.

Paik Nak Chong, whose small company published the book of essays on China, and the book's editor, Lee Yong Hee, are now on trial. The book, called "Dialogue with 800 Million People," is described by their friends as a harmless collection of writings by non-Communists. A Justice Ministry official said that Mr. Lee had inserted "some of his own observations" which "supported the inevitability and the legitimacy of a Communist revolution.

Softening Seen

One dissident said last week that the government seems to be easing slightly its restraints on writers. He cited the case of two who published anti-government works of a young poet and were arrested for violating a presiden-tial proclamation. They were released after a month in prison.

The case of Park Yang Ho, who wrote the satirical story "Crazy Bird," is also mentioned as a sign that the authorities are lessening their punishment. The charges against Mr. Park were dropped, the Justice Ministry official said, because "it was his first offense and to the prosecutors he had the look of being repentant."

His book reportedly enjoyed considerable underground popularity before the government and rebound.

Seoul May Aid U.S. Probe of Envoy

For the first time in many weeks, South Korean officials yesterday hinted that they might cooperate in obtaining testimony from Kim Dong Jo. the former Korean ambassador to Washington who is accused of trying to buy influence for Seoul in Congress.

Sources at the Foreign Ministry said that Seoul's cooperation would be given as long as the 60year-old diplomat was spared from appearing in person before congressional investigators. President Park Chung Hee's government has so far insisted that, because Mr. Kim was a diplomat, was immune under international convention from appearing at foreign hearings.

Newspapers here indicated that, as in the case of Tongsun Park, some congressional figures would be allowed to talk to Mr. Kim in Seoul.

Dr. Banting, at the time a 29-year-old orthopedist from London, Ontario, convinced the late Dr. J.R. MacLeod, then head of the University of Toronto's physiology department, to loan him and Dr. Best a laboratory.

For eight weeks in the summer of 1921 they lived in the lab. unpaid, spending their own money for test animals and supplies. seeking a hormone secreted by the pancreas that stimulates the body to change sugar into energy. After weeks of watching their test animals die, the researchers injected a moribund dog with a substance extracted from a steer pancreas. The dog soon stood up and licked their hands. Six months later, a dying 14-ear-old diabetic boy became the first human to control the disease with insulin.

Dr. Banting and Dr. Mac-Leod-because he was head of the department where the discovery was made—received the 1923 Nobel Prize, Dr. Banting, angry that Dr. Best was overlooked, split his prize money with him. Dr. MacLeod said later, "I did not win the Nobel Prize for my discovery of insulin, but for my discovery of Best."

The industrialized nations are to pro-, le (mostly private) capital, technology and carkets, the oil-cartel members their "surgus wealth," and the poor countries a growdg measure of "responsible participation" in evolving world economy. In brief, easy es it: no revolutions, no sudden wrenchis, no loud shouting — an acceptance in tics and manners of the U.S. logic of inter-

F It was not a presentation calculated to Frill a Third World audience. Some segents of the Third World, though not necess rily Venezuelans, prefer the United States admit an exploiter's guilt and start cough-g up "reparations." Others, more reason-ly, find the United States inattentive to ng-term self-interest. The Carter speech was, however, respectful of the aspirations, if not all of the anguish of poor nations and of "middle class" nations like Venezuela. They will judge the President and the United States by performance anyway. And the speech did not take Mr. Carter into realms of expectation in which he risks being undercut at home. That way lies only the shrinking of the public support for development that Mr. Carter should be working carefully to

By visiting two Latin American countries (Venezuela and Brazil) President Carter implicitly underlines the "special relationship" the United States has with Latin America. It is a tie that, as Venezuelan writer Carlos Rangel observes. Latin Americans are as loathe to live with as they are to let go. In focusing on development, Mr. Carter at once responds to a Latin American preoccupation and reminds Latin Americans that, in Rangel's words, they are in North American eyes "failed co-participants in the great joint venture of settling the New World." That is how one explains the mixture of genuine warmth and prickly pride that Mr. Carter found in Venezuela.

Judicial Omnipotence

ike other public officials, judges need to protected from angry losers. That's why Supreme Court a hundred years ago esplished the doctrine that judges are imane from damage suits based on claims at their judicial acts have wrongly harmed meone. Judges would not feel free to make incipled or unpopular decisions in controrsial cases if losers could hound them with igation charging malice or corruption. But B Supreme Court this week carried the ctrine too far in the case of a young womwho was sterilized after what was, at best, kangaroo-court proceeding. Its decision ants unchecked power to judges to act cretly, conspiratorially and even illegally thout fear of being sued for damages; they ed only invoke the right of judicial trapp-

Consider the facts of this case. In 1971, an diana woman presented to a local judge a tition to have her 15-year-old daughter rilized. The mother stated under oath that e girl was "somewhat retarded" (although e had been promoted with her class in hool each year), that she associated with der men and had stayed overnight with em on several occasions, and that sterilizaon would be in her best interest "to prevent ifortunate circumstances." The judge aned the petition-without notifying the rl or appointing a lawyer to represent her · holding a hearing or filing the petition in s court. He acted, what is more, without ly specific grant of power under Indiana w. A week later, the girl was sterilized at e same time her appendix was removed. me years later, after she was married, she scovered what had been done and sued the dge, her mother, her mother's lawver and e doctors for damages.

The Supreme Court ruled, 5 to 3, that the dge is immune from the suit. What he did was a "judicial act," the court says, because signing the petition is an act normally undertaken by a judge, and the parties were dealing with him as a judge. He would not be immune, the court said, only if he clearly lacked jurisdiction over the petition. He had jurisdiction, it explained, because Indiana law gave him broad, general power and did not sepcifically bar him from handling such

For the reasons set out eloquently by Justice Potter Stewart in dissent, we think the Supreme Court's logic is defective. It permits judges to abuse their power without fear of redress. Just recently, a judge in New York ordered the immediate arrest of a street vendor who had sold his bailiff a cup of coffee the judge did not like. That, under the Supreme Court's formula, was a "judicial act." But even that, as gross as it may have been, was quite different in character. The vendor, in theory at least, could get a judge of a higher court to set him free. The girl who was sterilized had no opportunity to appeal to a higher court and no way to change the permanent effect of the "judicial" order on her

As Justice Lewis Powell pointed out in his dissent, the Supreme Court simply ignored the basic reason why a nation can run the risk of granting its judges a certain immunity. It is that their acts as judges are, almost without exception, subject to review before they create permanent damage. A single judge, acting wrongfully or spitefully or illegally, can harm you temporarily in many ways. But he should never have unlimited power to make that harm permanent on his word alone. That blatant immunity is what the court has granted. It is a deeply disturbing step toward judicial omnipotence.

Carter Defends World Bank

By Graham Hovey

VV ing to grim warnings from Capitol Hill, the Carter administration has mounted an intensive campaign to prevent Congress from crippling the World Bank and other financial institutions.

Recently, for example, Vice-President Mondale met with five congressmen over breakfast at the White House to discuss the problem, and his staff let it be known that he was planning more strategy sessions with leaders of both houses of Congress and both political parties. As part of a concurrent effort,

Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., has called a meeting April 26 of members of four Senate committees with Robert McNamara, president of the World Bank. A Javits aide said the senator was concoherently to the American

At the breakfast meeting, Mr. Mondale was told bluntly that an all-out administration drive was long overdue to shore up support for the international organiza-tions by "educating" congressmen, especially newcomers, on the importance of international agencies for the United States.

"I told him that something equivalent to what they did on the Panama Canal treaties would be required," said Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., a strong supporter of the financial institutions.

Funding

Since it began operations more than 30 years ago, the World Bank has funded about 1,100 projects in nearly 100 countries at a total invested cost of $60 billion. The World Bank disposes of authorized capital of $34 billion, of which the current U.S.share is just under 25 per cent.

The Inter-American Development Bank, the largest of the regional banks disposes of total au-thorized capital of $10.3 billion, of which the U.S.share is $3.6 billion. Since it started functioning in 1961, it has made 1,046 loans for a total of $12 billion.

Appropriations bills for the international institutions now are moving through the legislative mill, menaced as they were last year by proposed funding cuts and by amendments that would interfere critically with their lending authority.

Although the charters of the World Bank and regional devel-opment banks specify that loans can be made only on economic grounds, influential congressmen are trying to add in human-rights

Other forces in Congress are seeking to block any use of U.S.funds for loans to countries trying to increase their exports of products that might compete in world markets with U.S. products. Still others question the efficacy of the institutions in getting funds where they are needed. And there is a sizable congressional bloc, which is supported by the administration, that would like to see sharp cuts in the salaries and benefits offered by the institu-

To Vietnam, Loas, Cambodi-palm oil and citrus fruits where these would be for export "and could injure producers in the United States. Backers of the international institutions were dismayed.

Argued

They argued that the votes and behavior of the U.S. delegates, as ordered by the President, would politicize and undermine the international institutions as surely as the congressional amendments would have done.

In particular, Rep. Conte said that the promised votes against loans for three commodities, in effect, invited every member with "a commodity problem" to tack on an amendment the next time around.

An added trouble this year is that the United States is $835 million in arrears on pledged contri-butions to the World Bank (formerly known as the Internationa Bank for Reconstruction and Development), the Inter-American Development Bank and the Asian Development Bank, as a result of congressional cuts in the two previous years.

Rather than ask for a supplemental appropriation to wipe out these deficits, the administration decided to add the $835 million to its regular budget request for fis-cal 1979.

Thus, the 1979 request was for $3.5 billion, including the $1.4 billion of callable capital, or funds that that will not be spent unless one of the international banks should sustain its first default ever on a loan.

Critics

Critics cite the $3.5 billion as representing increases of 82 per cent over fiscal 1978 and 200 percent over fiscal 1977.

They are taking aim particularly at the request of $1.5 billion for the International Development Association (IDA), the World Bank's so-called soft-loan win-dow, where interest-free long-term credits are designed to aid development in the poorest countries.

The request for the IDA is a tempting target because it is swol-len by an overlap and by the refusal of Congress last year to vote on appropriation it had specifically authorized in 1977.

So the administration is asking $750 million for the IDA's fourth replenishment of funds and $800 million more for part of its fifth replenishment.

Donors

All of the 24 other donor countries have already completed their contributions to the $4.5 billion fourth replenishment, of which the total U.S. share was about one-third. But the other 26 donors for the $7.6 billion fifth replenishment have indicated they will hold back their deliveries of funds United States will fulfill its $2.4 billion pledge.

If Congress should refuse to complete the fourth replenishment contribution, the Treasury Department says that by June the United States would be in default on "a legally binding international obligation."

Officials say the effect of an American default would be disastrous for the poor countries. "I frankly don't think there is a chance" of getting the fourth replenishment money for the IDA Congress this year.

In Lebanon Crisis

UN's Quiet Service

By James Reston

the UN, as usual, that had to organize the peace-keeping troops.

It is only at times like these that the UN is recognized, not much but some, as a useful instrument in world affairs. When the major nations have the will to use it in emergencies, as they did after Israel's counter-invasion of the Lebanon, the UN can act with admirable dispatch. It is "useless" only when the members of the Security Council decide not to use Secretary-General Waldheim is trying to expand its role now in two different ways. He is con-cerned about the stalemate in the bilateral negotiations on the Middle East, and is hoping that some kind of preliminary or exploratory consultations can begin here to keep the Middle East talks going. And he is worried that the decline in U.S.-Soviet relations may impede progress at the UN disar-mament conference here in May.

Arms Parley

Accordingly, he is trying to per-suade President Carter and Presi-dent Brezhnev of the Soviet Un-ion to attend the disarmament conference, and to use this occasion for a private discussion of their differences. They have agreed in principle to meet after they have agreed on a (second strategic arms limitation treaty, but Waldheim fears that they will not reach an agreement unless they meet ahead of time and remove the suspicions that are now hampering the negotiations on both sides. President Carter has indicated that he will address the disarma-ment conference. President Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France in showing new interest in the United Nations. He not only agreed to put French troops into the peace-keeping force in the Lebanon (without being asked to do so), but will come here for the disarmament conference with major new proposals. This will be the first time a French president has addressed the General Assembly.

Thus, Secretary General Waldheim is hoping that this conference will bring other major world leaders here for a public presentation of their arms proposals, and perhaps more important, for an informal series of discussions on their other differences in the Mid-dle East and Africa.

Hampered

So far, he has received little encouragement from Brezhnev, and even the process of discussion has been hampered by the recent disappearance of the Soviet Foreign like Brezhnev, is said to be in

U.S. Law System

It is always heartening to ob-serve the spirit of the U.S. charac-ter when it inquires after the tragassassination of President John Kennedy. Many of us hope that such a terrible fact of history will not rest easily, and that htose who might have been involved, but, for some reason or other, were not discovered will be found out, no matter who they be.

But one must ask of the U.S. public a serious question. Does it believe, in light of the Justice Department's recent ill performance over Watergate prosecutions and convictions, in light of the full flaunting of the law with regard to full prosecutions in the My Lai massacre (as sordid an event that military history could guilty were, by design or by hap-penstance, members of the CIA, or any other secret agency of the federal government?

It should be observed that U.S. common law has been under a unified attack not only from orga-nized crime in the United States, but, however paradoxical this is to assert, by the secret service agencies of the U.S. government itself. Subornation, on numerous occasions, has not been punished as a felony in the United States; government officials have been actively encouraged to plead to lesser offence, at the instigation or cooperation of the Justice Department itself. Felonies, which by any other would be felonies, have been overlooked if they have been committed in the line of duty (as were FBI robberies). What one must ask is: How long can a criminal law system tolerate a Justice Department, as well as agencies of government, which seek to undermine the rule and sanctions of the criminal law in the pursuit of justice and in the punishment of felons? These questions cloud whatever answer can be given to those who may have had some part in President Kennedy's death, and, at the same, may have been agents in the employ of the American government. One asks: Who guards the

Shrinking Britain

I'm worried about the physical shrinking of Britain discoverd by Roy Reed on his trip to the Shetlands (IHT, March 27). He has found that these islands are now only 600 miles from London and record), does the public believe that correspondingly Edinburgh that guilt will be punished if those has moved closer too, now being only 300 miles away. My obviously outdated atlas gives these dis-tances as 800 and 400 miles respectively. At this rate of contraction, the Shetlanders' problem will soon be solved by their ig literally merged into London. GEORGE SCHOPFLI London The Little Board

Three circular platforms also of gradually diminishing size, each one lined by bell-shaped structures encasing seated Buddhas, lead up to the ultimate platform on which there stands one single bell-shaped structure. Even without knowing what it all means, one is aware of the compelling logic of a concept made a monument.

The bell-shaped structures on the circular platforms that look like stupas originally mausoleums erected over relics of the Lord Buddha-have been the subject of further debates. Buddhists themselves have been hesitant concerning these mysteries. And to them Borobudur is much more than a subject of scholarly interest. It still is a major pilgrimage center.

The answer that comes closest to a solution may have just been given by a Tibetan dignitary, Dvags-po Rimpoche, who lives in the West. After visiting the exhibition and observing the aerial view, he pointed out to a Western raging among Western scholars scholar that one could not questrying to penetrate that logic. THEATER IN LONDON

Like Uriah Heep on Speed

By John Walker

ONDON, March 31 (IHT)— It is still the off-season for British musicals. The latest, "The Travelling Music Show" at Her Majesty's, is subtitled "A Sort of Songbook," and that, indeed, is what it turns out to be: sort of songs, sort of composed by Leslie Bricusse and Anthony Newley.

That the evening is a sort of a success is entirely due to the performance of its star, Bruce Forsyth, who is hardly off the stage for two-and-a-half hours. But it is entirely a triumph of personality, hard work and professionalism over material.

The score consists mainly of old songs written by Bricusse and Newley, either separately or together, for previous musicals, such as "Stop the World, I Want to Get Off," "The Good Old, Bad Old Days" and "Dr. Dolittle."

They are performed within a framework that is a variation of the usual Bricusse-Newley book, the sentimentalized story of a little chap battling against the odds and winning. In this case Fred Limelight is a struggling musichall performer making his last attempt at stardom by staging a show featuring the talents of himself and his family.

Backstage Hysteria

On opening night, he finds that one of the cast is missing and the action switches from frantic hysteria backstage and in the wings to polished and calm performances on stage.

That the songs can be wrenched out of their original musical contexts and still work as well, or as badly, as ever suggests their strengths and weaknesses. "If I Ruled the World," a song originally sung by Pickwick in a bad Dickensian musical, is now performed by a young girl, Katie Budd.

It loses nothing, because it never was anything more than a ballad aimed at the contemporary and finally dips down to pour out hit parade. The depressing part of the evening is that even those France.) songs which were hits — "A its contents, after which it right and left, and fills up once Wonderful Day Like Today," "Talk to the Animals," "Who should, of course, be in public Can I Turn To" - are very ordimore accomplished and more gardens where they would be nary and, when delivered in bulk, turned on at certain hours. It is a clever, quick-witted performance that is impossible not to enjoy and admire. The rest of the cast are excellent performers. Derek Griffiths is a fine comic actor, Valerie Walsh has an exuberant charm, Katie Budd a youthful eagerness and Tony Maiden has the brash appeal of the young Anthony Newley. But they have little opportunity to make the most of their talents; unlike Forsyth, they have no opportunity to step outside the show.

They are trapped within the mundane material. Even Forsyth can do little with "What Kind of

Entertainment In New York

TEW YORK, March 31 (IHT)-This is how The New York Times critics rate new plays and films:

Plays

"Native Son," adapted from Richard Wright's novel. "lacks the breadth and even the atmospheric detail of the original," Mel Gussow says. However, "there is no denying that this is still an incendiary work of theater." The director. Dick Gaffield, has been "generally fortunate in his choice of cast; this is particularly true in the case of Bo Rucker" as Bigger Thomas. Gussow says that "if the book has not been fully realized in the play, neither have Gassield's intentions been sully realized in this production."

"Valpone" is a "sprightly animated version of Ben Jonson's mordant comedy," Thomas Lask says. "It is somewhat stripped down and quite unpretentious. Coral C. Potter is Valpone in this production, which Lask "can't imagine anyone coming away from disappointed." He says: The play is ...remarkably free of business. Thus, the players are thrown back on Jonson's pliant verse, take their cues from it and mold their actions around it."

Films

"The Other Side of the Mountain, Part II," is director Larry Peerce's sequal to the 1975 film of the same name about a championship woman skier who had been paralyzed in a downhill accident. "The problem with Part-II." according to Vincent Canby. is "that there are no problems. The ones that screenwriter Douglas Day Stewart has attempted to dramatize are lugubriously unbelievable." Jill Kinmont, played by Marilyn Hassett, falls in love with and eventually marries a long-distance truck driver played by Timothy Bottoms. The film "is really a 30 minute postscript to the original story blown up to feature length by attificial plot problems..."

bourg, 23 Rue du Renard, Paris 4, to April 22. There is something a bit mannered about the work of this talented painter and this detracts from the credibility of his subdued and lyrical subjects. A child looks at a flayed rabbit, a nude woman sits by the open door of a country house with a phone in front of her. All this is painted most carefully in a minutely pointillist manner, but there appears to be a contradiction between the manner and the content, as though the latter were shifted to a remote distance which belies or denies the original emotional clan which it professes.

AMC to Join Forces With Renault

Wide-Ranging Pact Just Short of Merger

DETROIT, March 31 (UPI)-American Motors Corp. and Renault officials announced today a preliminary agreement on a plan to combine sales and eventually manufacturing operations of the two companies.

In a joint statement, AMC President Gerald Meyers and Bernard Vernier-Palliez, president of state-owned Renault, said the companies will "work to reach a definitive, legally binding agree-ment" within the next few months on a plan to:

 Combine distribution of AMC and Renault vehicles in the United States and Canada.

 Develop future product plans regarding Renault and AMC passenger cars to be sold in the Unit-ed States and Canada.

 Consider eventual manufacture of one or more Renault cars in AMC's U.S. assembly plants. Sell AMC Jeep vehicles through the Renault dealer net-work in selected international markets.

Smaller Firms Bow To Carter Pressure

WASHINGTON, March 31 (UPI)—Following National Steel Corp.'s lead, Inland Steel Co. and Republic Steel bowed today to Carter administration pressure and undercut price increases an-nounced earlier this week by two major steelmakers. However, most other steel companies held off joining the new round of price increases until U.S. Steel Corp. decides whether to stick by its $10.50-a-ton increase or roll it back about halfway.

The nation's largest producer announced the hike Wednesday to offset higher coal costs arising from settlement of the recent miners' strike. But yesterday, it was undercut by National Steel Corp., which raised its prices by $5.50 at the which leaves the strict leaves t ton. National, the third largest U.S. producer, said a bigger increase was justified, but it settled for less because it wanted to help fight inflation. President Carter yesterday termed the $10.50-a-ton hike "excessive."

U.S. Steel President David Roderick said prior to the National Steel announcement that if Mr. Carter "asks us to roll back we would certainly listen to the President." But Mr. Roderick added that market forces determine prices and "we haven't announced a price increase to roll it back."

McDermott, B&W Merger Approved

Shareholders of J. Ray McDermott & Co., an offshore oil operations firm, have voted to acquire Babcock & Wilcox, a major manufacturer of industrial boilers and energy systems, in a stock exchange deal valued at $387.5 million. Each share of B&W common stock will be converted into shares of McDermott preferred. To cover the acquisition, McDermott created 25 million shares of preferred stock. In addition, the company will boost the present 36 million shares of common stock to 60 million shares. The merger ends a stock to 60 million shares. The merger ends a year-long bidding war for B&W between McDermott and United Technologies, a larger conglomerate based in Hartford, Conn. United originally bid $42 a share for the stock finally purchased by McDermott for $62.50 a share. McDermott will exchange one share of its $2.20 convertible cumulative preferred stock and one share of its $2.60 perferred stock for each B&W share McDermott does not already own. The perferred shares are valued at about $62.50, the same as that McDermott paid in cash under its 1977 tender offer. mott paid in cash under its 1977 tender offer.

As the result of a disputed tender offer, BOC earlier this year acquired 1.8 million Airco shares, increasing the U.K. company's interest in Airco to 49 percent. BOC subsequently sought—and was refused— Airco's blessing for a further $43-a-share offer for the remaining Airco shares. Although it had approved in advance BOC's offer for the 1.8 million hares, Airco later went to court to charge that the offer was part of a scheme by BOC to acquire Airco's shares outstanding "at a low and unfair

Dollfus Mieg, a major French textile group, says it will post a loss of 30-to-35 million French francs for 1977 compared with a loss of 19.7 million francs in 1976. The board will probably suggest passing the 1977 dividend payout against three francs a share, the company says, but sales since the beginning of year conform to expectations, and that its results in 1978 will likely show an improvement on last year.

It isn't clear whether a second volume is intended, although Flexner's record — four volumes on George Washington, three volumes on the history of American painting, etc. — suggests that one is inevitable. If nothing else, Flexner will want to disprove Vernon Parrington's contention that Hamilton was "the directing mind" of Washington's two administrations. While Flexaer is around, nobody is going to take anything away from George Washington.

The heart sinks on being told that "The Young Hamilton" is a "psychological biography." Surely we do not need any more bad dreams and toilet training; smite the rock of childhood, and Oedipal irresolutions gush forth. But Flexner is in no mood for survivor-guilt or symbolic parricides. Star at 30, Legend at 40, Gordie Howe Turns 50

By Parton Keese

NEW YORK, March 31 (NYT)—Gordie Howe is 50 years young today. So what? Well, do you know any other 50-year-old who is competing in the World Hockey Association, leading his team (the New England Whalers) in scoring, among the top five all-time WHA point leaders, playing alongside two sons, still the all-time National Hockey League champion in goals, assists, points and games played, has had the WHA's Mosi Valuable Player trophy named after him, is in the Hall of Fame and is about to become a grandfather?

Gordie Howe is still amazing people. A living legend at 30 and again at 40. Howe has become hockey's $6-million man at 50. "I'm nothing special," he submits.
"I'll just retire at 65 like everybody else.

Last night, the displanted Whalers capped a three-day cele-bration of Howe's birthday by holding a "roast," attended by teammates, celebrities, lifelong friends and 700 fans who paid $70 for a pair of tickets. The night before in Springfield Civic Arena, where the Whalers have played their home games since the roof collapsed this year at Hartford's Civic Arena, Howe was showered ith gifts, including a 460-pound cake, in a pre-game ceremony. led the Whalers to a 6-1 victory over the Cincinnati Stingers, tallying his 91st point of the season-and the 2,269th of his

That was Howe's 2,252nd game in the big leagues. Despite a 30season career (he missed two years when he "retired" in 1971) where he was named the Most Valuable Player in the NHL six times and a WHA All Star twice, Howe stood before an admiring crowd, brushed away tears and

They brought back memories and added praise.

"He was not only the greatest hockey player I've ever seen," said Gadsby, "but also the greatest athlete "

Gordie rewrote the game," said Shore, "from his wrist shot to his whole pattern of play." Almost from the day he joined Detroit, Howe impressed every-

The New York Rangers let Howe get away from them when Howe was 15 and appearing for a tryout. Shy, naive and inexperienced, Howe was heckled unmercifully by the Ranger veterans. Homesick as well, he finally quit the Ranger training camp and went home to be "discovered" shortly after by the Red Wings.

While winning six scoring championships and playing in 21 NHL All Star games. Howe became an intimidating player. Howe lost his front teeth in his first year in the NHL and then went on to break three ribs, several toes, a collarbone and a wrist. He has had three knee operations, one elbow operation and suffered double vision from a concussion for three months.

His latest favorite pastime, understandably, is taking whirl-pool baths. His least favorite is answering questions on when he will retire.

Other Delvecchio moves that are paying dividends for Lindsay and Kromm are the signing of Larson from the University of Minnesota in 1976 after the West-ern Collegiate Hockey Association suspended him for an altercation with another player, obtaining defenseman Greg Joly from Washington for Bryan Wat-son and trading Bill Hogaboam to Minnesota for Dennis Hextall.

He announced that anyone who wanted a shot would get it in training camp. Then he started signing rejects and any hockey player who could write his name. Goalie Ron Low was signed as a free agent from Washington and Walt McKechnie, the club's lead-ing scorer with 59 points, dispatched to the Capitols as compensation. Lindsay didn't like McKechnie's style. He signed wingers Rick Bowness and Larry Wright just before training camp. Former former Red Wing Thommie Bergman signed late in the season after the defenseman bought up his con-tract from Winnipeg, which had let defenseman Perry Miller go to

Two defenseman who Lindsay signed but hadn't played a game for Detroit, Steve Durbano and Dave Hanson, were dispatched to Birmingham of the WHA for Vaclav Nedomansky and Tim Sheehy. Nedomansky is adjusting to the NHL but Sheehy never scored a point and was let go.

Other Mistakes

Dennis Hull was another Lindsay acquisition who didn't set the world on fire. The aging left wing, who had retired at Chicago's insistence, was obtained for a draft choice but went 44 games without a goal with Detroit.

A lot of Detroit's players have been winners before, either in the minors, college or on other teams, and Kromm believes this plus ability plus hard work plus enthusiasm have all combined to turn the Red Wings around.

Ali's Sucker Appeal Is All That Is Left

By Red Smith

MIAMI. March 31, (NYT)— Muhammad Ali looked all washed up on the tube. To be sure, he didn't appear on the tube and he wasn't lurking behind the slot machines when Larry Holmes did a job on Earnie Shavers in Las Vegas the other day. Just the same, the performance served to same, the performance served to indict Ali as a fighter, in absentia.

Holmes went around Shavers, as they used to say, like a cooper around a barrel. Watching him pitch something close to a shut-out, it was impossible to ignore the contrast between this romp and the ordeal Ali suffered at the slow hands of Shavers just a few months earlier. Holmes showed Shavers up for what he has always been—a big, lubberly plodder with no lateral movement and a roundhouse swing that is his sin-gle weapon. In 12 rounds, Shaver may have landed three or four clean shots to the head, at most. Yet only last September these same crude punches caught Ali again and again and Shavers actu-ally took a lead on points against the most skillful boxer that ever lived. (That's Ali's own estimate and it does not necessarily reflect the views of this writer.) Ali was on the verge of obsolescence that night in Madison Square Garden when he dredged up strength for a 30-second closing rally that won he judges over. iow, as Shaver floundered in futile pursuit of Holmes, comparisons were inevitable: This beached whale almost knocked Ali out and did outpoint him in the judgment of some witnesses. That should put to rest any no-tion that it was a fluke or an upset when Ali lost to Leon Spinks in his next start. It should give the clientele a line on what to expect from Ali in the future. Justification

According to Bob Arum, the boy promoter, a country in Africa wants an Ali-Spinks rematch. Alrica may not be far enough away.

Arum says that there has been heavy pressure for a return bout from all over the world. He offers this as justification for his weaseling out of a commitment to match Spinks with Ken Norton, Actualthe loudest voice demanding Ali-Spinks return belongs to Bob Arum, who hopes to cut in on what's left of Ali's sucker ap-peal before it dwindles to noth-

In the meantime, other questions gain currency: How good is Holmes? Would he be a threat to Spinks? To Norton? To Ali? Larry has worked as a sparring

MARY BLUME

The big coup will be a book on Prince Charles's wedding, which the company is working full speed on despite the prince's lack of fiancee.

Debrett's Takes On a Common Touch

ONDON (IHT)—Kind hearts are more than coronets: that we have of course always known. But it is finally possible to state how much more. When Debrett's, the 208-year-old English company, published only its Baronetage and Peerage, company earnings were only £18 a day. Now that the company company earnings were only £18 a day. Now that the company has started tracing the lineage of common folk and, upon request, supplying them with suitable-for-framing family trees, daily earnings are up to £2,500.

The change, which has happened in less than two years, was led by Harold Brooks-Baker, a subtly tailored native of Maryland and London resident who is managing director of Debrett's Peerage Limited. Mr. Brooks-Baker had wanted to take over the sinking company before it foundered completely and while he could still enjoy the services of Patrick Montague-Smith, the editor of the Baronetage and Peerage, who has been Smith, the editor of the Baronetage and Peerage, who has been with the firm since the days of the Plantagenets.

Mr. Montague-Smith's new edition of Debrett's will be out next year at a cost to the company of more than £100,000. To offset that, the company is expanding its ancestry research line ("Your ancestry traced by Debrett's Peerage") and is lucratively publishing books with what Mr. Brooks-Baker describes as an imperial, royal or noble side. These include a guide to the recent Faberge show at the Victoria and Albert, "The Big Shots," a bloodcurdling account of Edwardian shooting parties with Edward VII on the cover, and "Debrett's Correct Form," which tells one how to address such difficult personages as the Widow of One Who Would Have Succeeded to a Peerage Had He Survived.

"This is a book on protocol, which is very different from etiquette," Mr. Brooks-Baker says. "It's very difficult for people to know how to address the second son of a second son.

Even people who live in the milieu are exaggerating when they say they understand everything."

The company is also updating Nancy Mitford's "Noblesse Oblige," and a director of Debrett's, Sir Iain Moncreiffe of that Ilk, whose eccentricities are notable even in his native Scotland, is writing a book on the English gentleman.

The big coup will be a book on Prince Charles's wedding. which the company is working on full speed despite the prince's lack of fiancee. "The first part, the history of his life, can be done well in advance," Mr. Brooks-Baker says. "Our three writers will work with two genealogists on the fiancee's family. The chances of our being the first book on the most important wedding of the century are pretty good."

Such go-getting deserves an accolade, especially as an earlier bit of trumpeting fell flat. To publicize its ancestry research branch, Debrett's traced the genealogy of President Carter. "Many people thought it was just a publicity gimmick," Mr. Brooks-Baker says. "We were trying to show that an American whose family had not been rich and famous could have his family traced.

Carter's waning popularity made general interest in his background rather slight, except among the Carters of Virginia. who were hopping mad.

The average attitude I found in Virginia was we're related to Carter—as indeed most Virginians are—but he's not related to us. We don't speak the same language, we don't wear the same clothes, we're Anglicans, he's a Baptist.

"My feeling," says Mr. Brooks-Baker severely, "is that every European family—we're speaking of the great European families—has accepted that he has relations that are humble. If the Queen can accept that she has relations named Smith or Jones. then I would suggest that a Carter of Virginia can do the Unstung by the Carter backfire. Debrett's is planning to use John Washington, a descendant of George, to promote its new roots-style tours. "We'll take him to various places where his ancestors lived. We'll also take him to Germany where he has relations. There are very few Americans who realize there are any Washingtons left. He lives modestly but can use Mount Vernon for parties."

Those who want to take ancestry tours must first give Debrett's six months' notice, during which their genealogies will be traced. A staff genealogist will meet them upon their arrival and point them toward the right house or churchyard. "It's as expensive as you wish to make it." Mr. Brooks-Baker says. "You can bicycle and camp out, or stay in a beautiful castle."

These days Debrett's likes to emphasize the common touch. It is easier and cheaper, Mr. Brooks-Baker says, to trace a Greek-American family who emigrated only 40 years ago than a Carter who has been in the United States for three centuries. The company has offices throughout Europe, contacts with all the Communist countries save Albania and an admiration for the records kept by Sephardic Jews. In addition. Sir Iain Moncreiffe is an expert on Japanese genealogy.

"We would like to think that eventually we could do the world with the exception of Africa where, outside of North Africa, written records do not exist," Mr. Brooks-Baker says.

Debrett's is also planning to expand its travel division to recreate the Grand Tour or to allow parties to follow their heros' traces. Mr. Brooks-Baker himself has done a Ludwig of Bavaria tour and has followed the footsteps of several Bourbon-Parmes, "Tallyerand is one of my favorites. I did a Tally-

Debrett's may be flourishing thanks to all the new blood, but the company had another publicity setback when it offered to trace Alex Haley's Irish roots. "He hasn't even given a reply," Mr. Brooks-Baker says.

"English genealogists think he did an admirable job, but I think he must also accept that he is part white and pay attention to that part of his ancestry. The name of the family in Ireland is Jackson. They produced Stonewall Jackson.

"In genealogy you don't have the right to be selective," Mr. Brooks-Baker says firmly. "Haley is guilty of the same thing as the Virginians. That's scholastically dishonest and, I think, personally rather boring.

PEOPLE: John Wayne Enters A Boston Hospital

The switchboard at Massachu-setts General Hospital in Boston was jammed with calls from fans of John Wayne, who is undergo-ing tests for a reported breathing problem, but hospital officials said the actor asked that no infor-mation about his condition be given out. "He's being given out. "He's being examined," said hospital spokes-man Chris Bullock, "It's not related to cancer. That's all we can Wayne, 70, survived a bout with cancer that cost him a lung in 1964. A few days ago Wayne said that he was not being treated for cancer. "No, pneumonia." he said. "Hell, I got rid of that cancer 14 years ago." Meanwhile, a Boston radio station said that Wayne would underte open heart. Wayne would undergo open heart surgery.

Norwegian explorer Ther Heyerdahl, who wants to prove that ancient Sumerians traveled widely on primitive boats, has arrived in Djibouti aboard his marsh-weed craft. Heyerdahl and his international crew arrived in this port on the Gulf of Aden after a journey across the Indian Ocean on the Tigris, a crude vessel patterned after Sumerian vessels. They left Karachi on Feb. 26. The explorer is expected to stay for about a week. He and the other adventurers set out four months ago from the confluence of the Tigris and Euphrates rivers in Iraq. Heyerdahl says his objective is to determine how far the Sumerians could have gone on their boats and possibly where they went. Before leaving Iraq the 63-year-old ex-plorer said this probably would be his last ocean expedition.

Explaining that Queen Elizabeth, one of the richest women in the world, has fallen afoul of inflation just like everyone else, the British treasury has confirmed that she is about to get a raise in her tax-free $3.5 million annuity. Other members of the royal family are also marked down for raises, which are expected to be around 10 per cent. The Queen enjoys public popularity, as does her son and heir Prince Charles, so their raises are not expected to set off too much grumbling. But the Queen's sister. A Santa Ana, Calif., foundation is planning to buy Richard Nixon's birthplace for $125,000 and wants to preserve it as a his-torical site. The small wooden frame home is owned by the Yor-ba Linda School District, according to Elton Partridge, deputy district superintendent. It sits on a 1.3-acre lot valued at more than $100,000. The school district bought the area as part of an eight-acre parcel about 50 years ago and built a school on part of the land, Partridge said. There had been plans to sell the Nixon birthplace earlier, but after the Watergate scandal buyer interest waned, he said. However, the Nixon Birthplace Foundation "approached us and said that no matter what had happened, he [Nixon] was still the 37th president of the United States and he was from Yorba Linda," Partridge said.

The sale of the home to the local foundation was officially approved by the Orange County Board of Supervisors.
